THIRTY-FIRST REPORT

ON THE

DISTRICT, CRIMINAL,

AND

PRIVATE LUNATIC ASYLUMS

IN IRELAND.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY JOHN POYNTE, EARL SPENCER, K.P., K.G., LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

We have the honour to address the present, our Thirty-first PRELATORY.
Report to your Excellency on the district asylums, and the general lunacy department of this country during the past year.

The question of mental disease in its multifarious aspects, so far as is pertinent to a Parliamentary Report, having been so frequently and so amply adverted to in previous public documents emanating from this office, in order to avoid any useless repetitions of what we may have already submitted for the consideration of the Executive; and further as locally published Reports afford all the information to ratepayers, and others interested in the lunatic institutions belonging to their respective cities and counties, we purpose limiting our observations on the present occasion principally to statistical results developed in the twelve-month we are about to deal with.

At the close of the year 1880, there were in district asylums General Statistics.
8,667 patients, 4,685 males, 3,982 females; and at a corresponding period in 1881—8,978, of whom 4,860 were males, 4,118 females; during the last named year 2,502, between both sexes, were admitted, consequently 11,169 were under treatment. Out of this total, 1,019 were discharged cured, 306 improved, 69 unimproved but tranquil; 7 escaped. The deaths amounted to 790—thus leaving, as already stated, 8,978 inmates in the twenty-two public asylums on the 31st of last December, or a surplus of 311, as compared with the number at the same date in the preceding twelvemonth.

PREFATORY. Of the total admissions, 2,044 were entered as cases of first attack and 458 as "relapses;" it would, however, be erroneous to assume that the former from the designation were acute or early seizures, it simply means admissions for the first time—they might be, for example, and in very many instances had been, chronic patients, imbeciles, demented or epileptics, who becoming violent or dangerous were brought from home, or from poor-houses, occasionally, too, being far advanced in life. The relapsed cases, embraced those previously discharged, but readmitted, of all ages, and of all types of mental disease.

Deduction. An estimate of the beneficial working of insane establishments is commonly derived—but it seems to us on a fallacy—from the relative number, or proportion of cures to admissions; the more legitimate, certainly the more practical, deduction so far, is to be obtained from a calculation of recoveries annually on the daily average under treatment. The account of relapses constituting nearly a fifth of admissions, is strongly indicative of the fact that while medical science is able to contend with physical affections to a great extent, and steadily progresses, the mind is beyond its control, as a rule, save when bodily diseases may have superinduced in it an unhealthy action.

Cures. The discharged in 1881, as recovered, are set down between both sexes at 1,019, with the slight difference of 11 in favour of males—as improved at 306, in an almost identical proportion—158 to 148. 69 incurables were removed by friends—the aggregate on the three heads being 1,394. If the cures be judged of by admissions, they would stand at about 40 per cent., but if by the daily average of patients, namely 8,794—the more reasonable criterion, but on its showing not the most flattering, so far as figures go, to professional knowledge—not quite 11½ per cent. In these observations we by no means intend to restrict our meaning to Irish Asylums, which certainly are not in efficiency one whit inferior to those of any other country.

Deaths. We now come to the rate of mortality and the causes thereof in the year 1881. The total deaths amounted to 790—412 men, 378 women—of these 783 were natural, 2 accidental, and 5 suicidal. In the first category pulmonary or general thoracic affections, as well as cerebral, predominated relatively, 275 and 189, over all others combined. As regards the seven deaths between accidents and suicide, inquests were duly held on them, and in each case with an exculpatory verdict. Deducting discharges, escapes, and deaths, as above given, from the total under treatment on the first day of the present year, as already stated, 8,978 lunatics were located in our public asylums.

Per-centage of recoveries. The mortality per-centage for a series of years, exceptionally low in the lunatic institutions of this country, was less in 1881 than in the preceding twelvemonth, being 7 per cent., as against 7½ on a similar calculation.

With respect to cures, no very noticeable advance has occurred, for example, in 1880, the discharged as recovered amounted to 1,001; in 1881 to 1,019, there being 311 more under treatment to make up, in part, the difference of 18. Similarly the improved stood as 302 to 306, and the relapses, 441 to 458 in each year respectively.

PREPARATORY.

Proceeding on another line, we find the refractory and noisy, 1,908 to 1,924; the tranquil and orderly, 6,568 to 6,709, scarcely a difference of 4 per cent. And the probably, or perhaps accurately speaking, the possibly curable, 2,016 to 2,141, respectively, in the two years, being 311 patients more in the last under treatment.

Still bearing in mind the fact that out of 8,978 inmates harboured in district institutions for the insane of this country, that 2,141, or not a fourth, offer reasonable hope of recovery—and a less proportion is to be found in English county and metropolitan asylums—it may be inquired why such an extensive and costly public department should be maintained in its present form without, at least, apparently corresponding advantages. So far as the curative are concerned, there can exist no difference of opinion; as regards the other denominations, an incontestable reason can be adduced in the fact that the quiet and orderly, who form the far larger section, can only be so maintained, as experience has proved, by a uniform system of well and fully regulated asylums; while the violent, refractory, hopelessly insane, but above all the suicidal, and an inconsiderable share of the epileptic, when excited, require for their own, or the safety of others, that unremitting care, which is solely available in well organized establishments, managed by competent officers and servants.

General observations.

If in the vast majority of cases, the inmates of asylums are so, not from any fault of their own, but owing to a visitation of Providence, whereby they are deprived of social rights and privileges, it is but just that their comforts should be liberally considered, and the irksomeness of their confinement mitigated, particularly when their intellect is not over-clouded by delusions, and when they can appreciate ordinary pastimes.

The Inspectors have been charged with a disposition to extravagance in the construction, and extension of hospitals for the insane, but there can be little room for extravagance when the object attained justifies the mode of securing it.

Alleged extravagance.

A waste of money arises when an expenditure is too restricted to be useful. In fact, our only desire is to locate in public asylums suitable inmates, ensuring at the same time in each district, a becoming receptacle for others who need less attention.

We are by no means advocates of the principle, that because lunatics are maintained in Asylums partially by a rate in aid, in consequence of the large expense which without it would be entailed upon the ratepayers of the country, that the demented and harmless who could be satisfactorily treated with ordinary care and liberality in less ample buildings, should have a like claim on the Treasury. The real difficulty proceeds from the

PREFATORY. fact that neither Ireland nor England is placed in the same favourable position in regard to its insane poor as Scotland.

Insane attacks and recoveries. Reverting to the admissions and discharges in 1881, the information derived from the statistical tables before us, confirms our past experience, by showing, if not a uniformity, a close similarity of results, not only as regards the period of life when mental disorders become most manifest, essentially between twenty-five and thirty-five, in which decade there exists happily greater recuperation than in any other, but in the larger probability of cures in proportion to promptness of treatment, as exemplified by the fact, that in the above mentioned year there were 396 recoveries under four months, 279 between four and eight, while from twelve to eighteen, or in half a year, only 73 are recorded. With respect to improvements, the distinction is more marked, 103 occurring within four, and 51 between four and eight months.

Causes of lunacy. It is difficult when dealing with patients belonging to the humbler grades of society in this country, where destitution is so prevalent and families of houseless wanderers so numerous, to discover even the supposed causes of mental disease, but so far as we have been able to collect them under the heads of moral and physical, out of 3,911 cases in public asylums on the 1st of January, 1,793 were attributable to the former which included poverty, reverse of fortune, grief, anxiety, disappointed love, jealousy, domestic quarrels, pride, and religious excitement; and 2,118 to the latter, or to intemperance, irregularity of life, cerebral or other bodily disease, febrile attacks, effects of climate, vicious habits, and the like.

Single and married. As heretofore, the great characteristic in a national point of view between the two countries is to be found in the extraordinary difference in the amount of lunacy as regards the married and widowed combined, and the single—the one 2,614, the other 4,000—364 not being ascertained. It is rather a nice question of morals to decide whether this disparity is more owing to Ireland than to England, from disappointment among the sexes in the one country at being unmarried, and in the other at disappointments after being married.

Relationship. On the score of relationship, it would appear that 56 lunatic parents had children under treatment with them, on the 30th December last, at which date brothers and sisters numbered 193, first and second cousins 266, besides 521, including uncles and aunts, who previously had relatives mentally affected within the above degrees of kindred—facts which speak for themselves.

EXPENDITURE.

Accounts generally.

EXPENDITURE.

The next subject we shall advert to is the audited expenditure for 1880. On the first day of the year there was a balance in hands of £19,900 15s. 5d. to the general credit of district asylums, in the course of the twelvemonth, a sum of £108,963 16s. 7d. was levied and paid in through grand jury presentment, on orders issued from this Office in due form, prior to the spring and summer assizes—a rate in aid grant was made by the Treasury EXPENDITURE. of £85,841—£4,095 17s. 7d., was obtained from pay-patients—not a tenth of what a late commission calculated on—£2,470 18s. 3d.

for farm produce sold, while various incidental receipts supplied £290 12s. 3d.; the above, together with a balance of £2,991 9s. 7d., constituted a total of £225,157 8s. 8d.—Deducting from which the full current expenditure for the time being, namely £200,626 16s. 9d.—there remained an available surplus of £24,530 11s. 11d. The largest items of outlay during the year were £90,532 7s. for provisions of all kinds, and medical requirements; £25,697 4s. 9d. for personal clothing and bedding;
£45,546 8s. 3d. for salaries, wages, and superannuations; £13,392 3s. 9d. for furniture and repairs—£3,879 7s. 5d., to cover garden and farm expenses, the institutions not only being thereby supplied with vegetables, but deriving £2,470 18s. 3d.
from produce sold—fuel and light and soap amounted to £13,169 14s. 9d.

The capitation cost, viz., £22 16s. 3d. on the daily average Capitation cost (8,345) under treatment in the year was below that of 1879, by 9s. a head, which too was less than in 1878, both indicating a progressive diminution of outlay. If from the above average £10 8s. be deducted received from Government, the difference would scarcely exceed the cost of a poorhouse inmate, if every separate item of union maintenance was considered; for, it should be borne in mind that, with the exception of repayments extended over a series of years for moneys issued through Orders in Council for primitive buildings, large structural additions and the purchase of land, all disbursements and establishment charges in district asylums are unexceptionally debited to current expenditure.

Then the investigation of district asylum accounts by the Audit.
Government auditors nothing can be more just or stringent; ten in number, they devoted between them in 1881 seventy-five clear days to the varied details of audit, and it is gratifying to us to add that out of twenty-two asylums on an aggregate expenditure of £200,626 16s., in one only was an error reported to us in the overpayment of a contractor by £2 13s., since returned.

We are thus particular in fiscal references as the Office is to a Establishment of District Asylums.
considerable extent responsible for a regularity in the taking of contracts and subsequent payments.

Altogether apart from the annual maintenance cost of the Total Cost up to the present.
lunatic poor it may not be out of place were we here, as joint Commissioners of Control for the erection and establishment of District Asylums in Ireland to direct your Excellency's attention to the position in which the country stands in regard to past advances, and its present indebtedness to the Treasury. It is needless to refer to the sums granted on loan from time to time since the passing of the 1 & 2 Geo. IV., cap. 33—suffice it to remark that in round numbers they amount to £1,276,000, and it must be added on the most favourable terms, no interest having been charged on any of them prior to 1877, whereby a saving has accrued to the ratepayers of EXPENDITURE. the kingdom of fully £320,000, independent of which in 1825 the Richmond, valued at £64,000, was handed over as a gift to the Metropolitan district by Government, and £29,500 remitted in 1859, on the then existing debt to the Treasury. Of the total advances under the Act, £130,000 may be approximately set down for the purchase of land. The bulk or difference represents the cost of buildings and the incidents of accommodation for our Insane poor. The balance due by the country at the close of the last fiscal year and in process of liquidation amounts to £270,500.

The preceding we believe to be a faithful representation of the general monetary bearing of Irish district asylums. At present there is a floating expenditure on works in hands under the Board of Control of about £50,000 (included in the above resumé, but not as yet bearing interest).

During the fiscal year, ending in March, the following sums have been placed to the credit of Asylum Boards, from the Public Works Loan Fund, namely, £6,000 respectively at Armagh and Ballinasloe, £4,000 at Belfast, £5,500 Clonmel, £1,000 Cork, £1,000 Downpatrick, £4,500 Kilkenny, and £1,676 between Clare, Killarney, Limerick, and Waterford.

An Order in Council has been sanctioned for £20,000 for enlargements at the Derry Asylum, undertaken by the Board of Governors, contrary to the advice of the Inspectors, who urged on it the expediency of constructing a new asylum altogether, on an open and cheerful site, so as to afford ample space for classified airing courts, and the erection of an adequate infirmary and dining hall; besides a recreation-room, and chapel, not included in the present plans.

It may not be here out of place were we to reiterate a long entertained desire that the staffs attached to public institutions for the insane in Ireland were more liberally dealt with, and thereby brought to a nearer approximation as regards salaries, wages and pensions, to the occupants of parallel positions in England. The duties of officers and attendants alike in both countries are equally well performed in either; but when the question of remuneration is mooted, different opinions are expressed in different localities, and what appears to us a mistaken economy too frequently results, one, which disheartening even to the zealous, inclines many of our best attendants to seek employment elsewhere. As two-fifths at least of the annual cost of supporting district asylums is furnished by the Executive, we venture to hope the subject of an improved arrangement in respect to salaries and wages will not be deemed undeserving of an early and favourable notice.

POORHOUSES.

General Remarks.

POORHOUSES.

In this country, where poorhouses and lunatic asylums are not only generally adjacent to each other, but also closely identified with the well-being of the humbler classes of society, it cannot be a matter of surprise that a disposition should be prevalent to draw them into a still closer connexion by rendering the former, on a principle of economy, subsidiary to the latter. Essentially distinct in their management and object they must, however, on due consideration be kept apart to a very large extent, for a combination of two such departments cannot practically work with benefit to either, and no persons are, perhaps, more satisfied on this subject when it comes to the point than Poor Law Guardians themselves who, for the most part, are desirous to get rid of the insane out of their respective workhouses, particularly if requiring any special care. POORHOUSES.

So far as our experience avails, and from day to day the conviction strengthens, we think it highly advisable that in each asylum district there should be selected a poorhouse, if available, in a central position with land attached to it for exercise, and if possible with a cheerful and varied prospect, to which tranquil and utterly hopeless cases could be removed. It would be the cheapest, and best arrangement for the individuals themselves—as in many of these institutions, though Boards of Guardians are well disposed to meet the wishes of the Inspectors, the sites, from their very restricted area, present unsurmountable difficulties, except in some five or six unions. On an average the number of insane paupers, principally too epileptic idiots and congenital imbeciles, one with other, does not exceed twelve or fifteen, in some poorhouses even two are not to be found. Allocation.

At Belfast, the Guardians have just shown an example well worthy of imitation, and somewhat approaching the plan adopted in the London metropolitan districts. By erecting a separate receptacle altogether for 300 of the classes in question, suitably constructed in an open space, at an outlay of nearly £6,000; where paid attendants are employed, the cost of the establishment being derived from the usual poor rates. Belfast.

The total number of the mentally affected in Irish workhouses on the 31st December, 1881, was 3,640, being 67 in excess of that in 1880; of these 1,435 were males, 2,205 females. Those classified between both sexes as lunatics amounted to 1,771, and as idiots or epileptic imbeciles to 1,869. The disproportion of insane persons in different workhouses varies, for example, from 297 in Dublin, and 269 in Belfast, to one in Newport, and to 3 in Dingle, while odd enough there are not a third as many of the lunatic class in Connaught poorhouses, making due allowance for the smaller population in that province, as in the three others. The same ratio, however, is very far from existing in respect to idiots and imbeciles. Statistics.

On the score of mortality indifferent as is the provision in unions for insane paupers it is so far superior to what prior to admission they had been accustomed to, that old age is largely noticeable among them.

CENTRAL ASYLUM, DUNDRUM.

We give as usual the Report of the Resident Physician and Governor.

As requested by the Inspectors, the Government assented to a Commission of Inquiry being held into the general local management of the Institution, and the official relationship existing between some of the officers, associating with them, for the purpose of a more efficient and exhaustive scrutiny, two experienced gentlemen from other departments. Not only the immediate investigations, but the drawing up of the reports thereon, extended over a considerable period, so numerous and varied were the points gone into. These reports involving on different points, a divergence of opinion between the Chairman and his colleagues, being still under consideration by your Excellency, we are of course precluded from making any further reference to the subject here; and we make this allusion to it as an occurrence in the history of the Asylum which we would not be justified in ignoring altogether in this Report.

"CENTRAL ASYLUM, DUNDEEM, 5th May, 1882.

"GENTLEMEN,—I have the honour to submit to you my report on this asylum for the year ended 31st December, 1881, with the statistical tables for the same period, and also the financial tables made up to the close of the financial year ended 31st March, 1882: these latter are, however, provisional only, being subject to alteration under query from the Auditor-General. It is gratifying to me to be able to show a saving under every individual sub-head of the entire vote, amounting in three instances to a considerable per-centage on the amount granted, viz.:—victualling, escort and conveyance, and incidental expenses. The saving on the entire vote amounts to £675, of which £494 is under the sub-head of victualling. Of this, the sum of £178 has been a saving effected in the expenditure on the farm, the outlay on which ultimately becomes chargeable on the victualling sub-head. The total expenditure has amounted to £6,159 10s. 3d., or an average of £35 7s. 11d. per patient. This sum does not include any outlay made by the Board of Works, who, in addition to maintaining the buildings, and keeping the drains and roadways in repair, supply the asylum with fuel and light, and with the greater part of the furniture, utensils, and bedding.

"The health of the inmates has been on the whole satisfactory, but I have observed during the year, a tendency to tubercular disease of the lungs, from which the asylum has hitherto been remarkably free. Only one death, it is true, occurred from it during the year, but there have been other cases in which the progress of the disease is apparently only kept at bay by treatment.

"The total number of deaths during the year has been five, giving a per-centage of 2·87 on the daily average number of patients, and of 2·5 on the total number resident during the year.

"The contract supplies of provisions were of fairly good quality during the year, but I was obliged repeatedly to reject the frieze and tweed supplied as not being up to the sample.

"The conduct of the staff throughout the year has been in general good. THE CENTRAL ASYLUM.

"I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

"Your obedient servant,

"ISAAC ASKE,

"Resident Physician and Governor.

"The Inspectors of Lunatics, Dublin Castle."

We would supplement the foregoing letter on the condition of the Criminal Asylum, uneventful as its history may have been in the past year, by certain references not unworthy of notice.

It is satisfactory to us to state that a regular and ample supply of water has been ensured, hitherto so much needed, not only for domestic purposes, but also as a protective against the danger of fire, the highest level of the building being now commanded by pressure from the city reservoirs. Supply of Water.

With regard to interior requirements it is expedient to enlarge the male dining hall, scarcely one-half sufficient for the purpose, or, perhaps, what would be better, to allocate it to the female patients, at present without one. This arrangement could be effected by converting the existing kitchen into a general refectory for the men, and erecting in lieu of it farther back a new one with a better cooking apparatus. Requirements.

The infirmaries admit of some structural improvements, and it would be well to provide rooms for the head attendant, as also for the night watchman who should reside within the precincts of the asylum.

The supply of milk obtained on the farm not being regular or sufficient, it will become a question whether it may not be more economical to obtain the article by contract, and use the land solely for agricultural products. The Milk.

The admissions in 1881, compared with those in the preceding twelvemonth, stand as 20 to 21. By limiting them as much as possible to serious criminal and tried cases, we have been enabled to keep the institution up to the legitimate wants of the country. During the past year the average number of inmates was six less than in 1880, and at the close of it four, the total then under treatment being 173—144 men and 29 women. Of the 20 admitted, 15 males and 5 females, 8 were charged with murder, 4 with assaults, 4 with burglary, the others were minor offenders, but of malevolent or bad repute. Admissions, how regulated.

The deaths, non-suicidal, or resulting in any manner from accident, were 5—4 men and a woman. Two escapes were attempted by male patients, who were promptly retaken. As a body, the inmates of the Dundrum Asylum are well conducted and amenable, a considerable number of the men being employed in the workshops assisting the attendants and outside on the farm; the women, as a rule, are more uncertain, but still useful.

Inspections. Our visits to the institution are manifold, averaging four monthly, and we are gratified to add that on no occasion during the year have complaints been submitted to us against subordinates either on the score of unkindness or impropriety of conduct.

PRIVATE ASYLUMS.
Observations.

These institutions have not varied in number during the past year; no old one closed, no new one opened, and the same system seems to operate with scarcely a variation in the treatment of their inmates. As heretofore, we have had no actual cause to censure any though open to improvement; some are conducted in a highly satisfactory manner, and may well bear comparison with the best managed elsewhere in every domestic comfort. We are constant in our visitation to all, and have reason to know that the provisions of the Private Lunacy Act are closely attended to. In no instance whatever has any justifiable cause of complaint been submitted to us, either personally or by letter. As a rule, the only difficulty we have to contend with, and so frequently noticed by us in previous reports, is in regard to patients who from continued inebriety or an unrestrained indulgence in vicious and unreasonable habits of life raise a question in themselves how far they can be considered as actually insane. At the close of the year 1880 there were under treatment in simply private paying asylums, and in those of a mixed character, or on charitable foundation, 622 of the better classes of the community, 236 males, 386 females. The admitted in 1881 amounted to 145, and the discharged and deaths to 130, leaving under treatment at the beginning of the present year 635. Of the discharged in the aggregate, 61 were recovered, and 13 amenable; 23 were taken home by their families as improved or tranquil. There were 33 deaths, 15 men and 18 women, but in no instance from accident or suicide, the percentage of mortality being  $4\frac{1}{2}$ , as against 7 in public asylums on a similar basis of calculation.

Stewart Institution. The Stewart Asylum at Palmerstown on a charitable foundation, and though receiving pay patients, supported principally by annual voluntary contributions, has proved highly beneficial in its working. There are at present in it 60 of the imbecile and idiotic class under a suitable system of education and training, besides 65 private lunatics, and 18 Government patients.

General Statistics. In conclusion, we supply a tabular summary of the Insane of all classes and of every type of mental disease who were located in public or private institutions subject to our inspection at the close (31st December respectively) of the two past years—

PRIVATE ASYLUMS.

	1880.	1881.
In District Asylums, . . . . .	8,637	8,978
In Central Criminal Asylum, . . . . .	177	173
In Stewart Institution (Government patients), . . . . .	20	18
In Private Asylums, . . . . .	633	635
In 163 Workhouses, . . . . .	3,573	3,640
In Gaols, . . . . .	3	—
	<hr/> 13,062	<hr/> 13,444

From the above it would appear that at the beginning of the present year there were 382 more under treatment than in 1881, whence the reasonable inference that in the interval lunacy had been on the increase, but it may be more apparent than real, as continued destitution forces many even amongst the poorest community in Ireland who had been wretchedly maintained at home to be sent to asylums or unions as the last refuge from starvation. There is, however, one clear deduction from the figures before us. In the two years combined there was an aggregate of 26,506 insane persons, of whom 13,197 were males, and 13,309 females. Making allowance for the surplus of the latter, 115,000 in the general population, an almost absolute identity on the percentage of a "visitation of Providence" in regard to both sexes is demonstrated.

Respectfully submitting the preceding report to your Excellency, together with its appendices, in which under a variety of headings ample information is afforded on its subject.

We have the honour to be,

Your Excellency's faithful and obedient servants,

JOHN NUGENT.

GEORGE W. HATCHELL.
